COOKING WITH KIDS

Children love to help in the kitchen! Invite them in to help make a snack and make a memory at the same time. There are many easy and kid-friendly recipes you can make together. Here's one to get things started.

CHOCOLATE MARSHMALLOW POPS

Yields 15 treats | Time: 20 minutes

You Will Need:

- 2 ½ cups of chocolate chips; milk, dark, or white chocolate will all work great!
- 1 ½ tablespoons of vegetable, canola, or melted coconut oil
- 30 large marshmallows
- 15 wooden popsicle sticks
- Optional toppings: chopped nuts, coconut flakes, crushed candies, sprinkles, etc. in separate bowls or on plates

Directions: In a microwave or with a double boiler on the stove top, melt chocolate chips with your desired oil. If melting in the microwave, start with 30 second increments so you don't burn the chocolate. Stir together until smooth. Pour into a shallow bowl.

Thread two marshmallows onto each pop stick leaving them close to the top of the stick, but securely on. Dip the marshmallows in melted chocolate, turning to coat them. Use a spoon to completely cover them if you need to. Lift out of the bowl and hold for the extra chocolate to drip off. Then, while still wet, sprinkle on toppings as desired. Place on waxed paper and refrigerate until the chocolate is set.

Cooking Conversations: Ask your grandchildren . . .

- To help you decide the toppings and allow them to choose the combinations. Ask them why they choose what they do.
- If they owned a restaurant, what kind of food would they serve? What would the restaurant be named?
- What is their favorite food and their least favorite food? Can they guess yours?
