Here’s what some who’ve seen Rock & Roll Literacy® have to say:

“The Rock & Roll Literacy presentation captivated both the students and teachers. Sigmund gave our teachers and students valuable tips about the writing process, how to get ideas, and he connected it all with high-energy music that motivated and sustained the attention and engagement of the students as he shared.”

Myles Hebrard, Claxton Elementary, Knoxville, TN

“...I would highly recommend this assembly to any school who is focusing on reading and writing. Sigmund is a unique motivator who creates a real student interest in reading and writing. We had two performances and I attended both of them . . . I didn't want to miss anything. Sigmund had the attention of both students and teachers! This is the kind of assembly that the students can't wait to get home and tell their parents what they did at school today.”

Darryl Gerber, Amity Elementary, Boise, ID

Rock & Roll Literacy® combines story and music in a one-hour presentation that entertains and motivates students and teachers. It encourages students to develop literacy skills as a way to reach for their dreams, and especially appeals to boys and reluctant readers and writers.

Rock & Roll Literacy, the non-fiction book, shows teachers how to rediscover and enjoy the power of story for their literacy work in the classroom.

The Rock & Roll Literacy Professional Development Seminar gives teachers a foundation for all reading and writing curriculums.

“Your writing message is simple yet so effective. We teachers (and especially the consultants) get caught up in the newest pedagogy sometimes to the detriment of the students.”

Best-selling author of 19 novels and several series of childrens’ titles, and with over 3 million books in print in five different languages, Sigmund Brouwer’s Absolute Pressure was a Junior Library Guild selection. He has appeared on Good Morning America to discuss a recent novel; his books have appeared in the top 20 of Amazon ebook downloads, and in the iTunes top 80.
