THIS TRAIN IS BOUND FOR GLORY

WATERBROOK

WRITTEN BY ALICE FAYE DUNCAN

ILLUSTRATED BY PAUL KELLAM

“All aboard!” calls the merry conductor.

His voice is like the wind—loud, warm, and strong.

Men, women, and children run to the Glory Train.

They raise their shiny tickets and skip up the narrow steps.

The train sparkles in the sunlight.
 The wheels begin to roll.
 All the passengers wave goodbye.
Choo-choo!

And as they sit down in their seats
 to ride the screeching rails,
 a boy picks and plucks his old guitar.
 He opens his mouth and sings . . .

THIS TRAIN IS BOUND FOR GLORY—THIS TRAIN!

THIS TRAIN IS BOUND FOR GLORY—THIS TRAIN!

*This train is bound for Glory.
Everybody here is a-rocking and a-rolling.
This train is bound for Glory—this train!*

A little girl all dressed in blue is giddy with joy and wonderment.

The trip ahead will be a thrilling ride.
She sings to the baby on her mother's knee . . .

*"This train is leaving the station—this train!
This train is leaving the station—this train!"*

*This train is leaving the station.
The people on board come from every nation.*

THIS TRAIN IS LEAVING THE STATION—THIS TRAIN!

“Wait for us!” yell three cowboys.
They chase the train until it stops.

They leave behind the dusty fields.
They jump on board and loudly cheer . . .

*“This train is a fast train—this train!
This train is a fast train—this train!”*

CLICKETY-CLACK! CLICKETY-CLACK! WOOO-WOOO!

*This train is a fast train.
All the people on board yell, “Howdy, friends!”
This train is a fast train—this train!”*
